The Doctor of Psychology (Psy.D.) degree program in school psychology at Minnesota State University, Mankato trains students to attain certification to practice as school psychologists and/or pursue other doctoral level employment such as university teaching. The program is designed to meet the doctoral-level accreditation standards of the National Association of School Psychologists. The program consists of 106 semester credits typically completed over five years.

Psy.D. students complete four practicum experiences as part of their degree program. One opportunity for an international practicum experience takes place on Ambergris Caye in Belize.

The School Psychology Belize Practicum Award was developed and funded through the generosity of several donors. Robert and Arlene Houlihan provided significant funding for student travel and living expenses. Curt and Debbie Fisher, with Bruce and Lisa Paradis, co-owners of the Blue Tang Inn in San Pedro, Belize, have generously donated lodging for the faculty and staff participating in this practicum.

Students participating in the Belize practicum work in two schools providing assessment and individualized plans for special needs students, as well as teacher training.
